CREATING A NEW CHOCOLATE CULTURE WORLD WIDE

Chocolate is not just about taste. It portrays contradicting aspects of our lives.
These aspects are the foundations of the new Max Brenner Chocolate Culture.

MAX BRENNER

A Chocolate Love Story

When meeting someone for the first time, I'm almost always asked how I actually started out making chocolate. I usually tell them that when I was 10 years old I read "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory" and I swore that one day I would find a river of chocolate and sail in it. I also tell them about Anna, who was my first love and who could not fall asleep without eating a piece of milk chocolate before going to bed, because otherwise she would have bad dreams.

But the truth is that I wanted to be a writer. One who gets up at noon, sits in cafes, writes until the following morning and devotes a book to an impossible, eternal love.

At the age of twenty, I thought that in order to get inspiration for my first novel I needed to be alone. I needed to walk in narrow streets, sit in a dark room with a candle, feel lonely and write. I went to live and work in the Seventh Arrondissement in Paris with a French chef who looked like Grandpa Geppetto. I was an apprentice for six years. He taught me how to make toffee, marzipan and nougat and told me stories that are only passed on from teacher to pupil. I was lonely but did not write.

Later, I searched for romance to get inspiration. I wanted to live in a small house, ride my bicycle to work, make colorful sweets to sell from big jars, and write. I opened a chocolate workshop. People fell in love with my reality movie and I was living the magic of romance, yet I was making so many sweets that I had no time left to write.

Then I wanted to experience decadence to get real, raging inspiration, like the stories in biographies of great writers. I wanted to wear Versace suits with tight pants, drink lots of wine, let the lights shine in my eyes, fall in love with the prettiest women and write. I designed and created a chocolate lifestyle and dove into decadence, but most of the time I was drunk and did not write.

More than ten years have passed since I started looking for inspiration for my writing. I still have yet to write. Recently, I bought a special feather pen and a thick, leather-covered, notebook. Soon, I will start writing my novel. I've been making chocolate for more than ten years. Almost without noticing it, I find myself telling its story. Maybe through telling its story, I can also tell something about myself, something about longing, romance and decadence.

I invite you to watch, smell, taste and feel my love story.

HUG MUG

The Max Brenner Chocolat is the cappuccino of chocolate - a light and frothy beverage. Chocolat is made of 100% chocolate from cocoa beans of different origins that give it a unique aroma. The drink is served in the Hug Mug - a specially designed mug for the chocolate drinking ceremony. The mug is shaped specially for hugging in both hands so that it creates the ultimate drinking experience of coziness, warmth and fragrance.

Suckao is the espresso of the chocolate drinks.
It is a small, dense, concentrated shot of rich chocolate.
The term "Suckao" is made up of two words that describe the utensil and the unique drink it contains:
Suck - to draw the dense liquid through the metal tube.
Kakao - the Spanish word for cocoa beans from which this rich chocolate drink is made and which determine its quality.

WAFFLES & CREPES

The Chocolate Bar is constantly changing. Its scents, music, people, lighting and tastes.

It looks and feels so differently throughout the day that, at times, it seems to have a life of its own.

Evening: warm, yellow candles glowing, shimmering in the shiny chocolate sauce poured over sweet dishes.

A steady rhythm is in the air. Colorful drinks decorated with bright candies served with glossy straws, just like in the warm tropical islands. It's crowded. Everybody is beautiful, like movie stars at a cocktail party hiding magical personal secrets behind their gleaming eyes.

Romantic Decadence

A truly chocolaty scent fills the air and intoxicates the guests. Peter Pan soars around the candy-filled pharmacy jars. Adults are children again. Once more, the big chocolate banquet liberates our most beautiful emotions.

WAFFLES & CREPES

 Munchies Waffles
